Start

TASHA: Wow, you look great! How are you feeling?

AMY: I feel good. I feel excited. I feel...gigantic.

TASHA: Don't worry about that...You're absolutely glowing!
(phone rings)

AMY: Oops, that's me.

BARB: (to Tasha) Betcha it's her mother

AMY: (AMY looks at phone) Ugh, it's my mother. She won't stop calling...I'm not answering it.

BARB: Thank God for voicemail.

BROOKE: I can't believe that the baby is almost here.

AMY: I know! I still have so much to do! And... I have constant heartburn! (searching for Mylanta)

BARB: Heartburn? HA! (whispering loudly to Tasha) Are we going to tell her that the stretch marks will never go away?

TASHA: Not now Barb.

BARB (whispering loudly to Brooke): Are we going to tell her that the hemorrhoids will never EVER go away?

AMY: Hemorrhoids?!? Who has hemorrhoids?!?

(Barb's hand slinks upwards)

BROOKE: Amy, just ignore her.

AMY: OK, just tell me one thing...is it going to hurt?

BARB: What? The delivery or the next 18 years?

AMY: The delivery

BROOKE, TASHA, BARB (in unison): hmm, yes.

AMY: Oh... (Amy swigs Mylanta)

TASHA: (upset with Barb, but trying to console Amy): Amy, look, there is pain involved and some crazy things happen to your body...But in the end, you have a baby. A beautiful baby!

BROOKE: Honey, it's such a special time.

BARB: Oh it's special all right.

BROOKE: Sure, it will take a few months to get organized but you'll create a system for yourself.

TASHA: And it will all be worth it. Like the first time you see the baby in the hospital, or the first time they smile,

BROOKE: The first time they sit up

BARB: The first time they spit up

TASHA: And the first time they call you mommy.

AMY: Oh, I can't wait for someone to start calling me Mommy...

BARB: Oh Amy...you really don't want to rush these things.

END.

MOMMY

BARB:

WHEN A BABY STARTS TO SPEAK,
I AGREE THAT IT'S PURE BLISS
BUT WHEN THEY FINALLY LEARN YOUR NAME
WELL IT KIND OF SOUNDS LIKE ...

MOMMY WHERE'S MY BLANKIE?

MOMMY I NEED HELP
